I'm Bisexual, Ex-Prison Official Says

By Stephen Hunt
THE SALT LAKE TRIBUNE

Former Utah State Prison Capt. Albert Anthony Waller — imprisoned for coercing sexual favors from a male inmate — is beginning to understand his sexuality, he told the Utah Board of Pardons.

"If I had to label myself, I would have to call myself a bisexual," Waller said during a Wednesday parole hearing. "I have enjoyed sex with my wife for 16 years, and I've also enjoyed sex with men."

"But sex with men causes me trouble and I want to overcome that. That's what I'm working on. My preference is to be heterosexual."

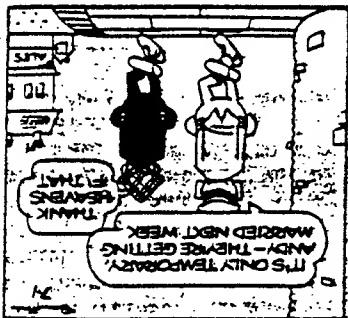

Waller said one of the biggest hurdles was admitting his sexual preferences to others.

But therapy in prison has helped, he said.

"I am afraid of being called a homosexual," he said. "Nobody wants to go home and say, 'Hi Honey, I'm a queer.' Having hid it and lied about it for so long, now that I don't have to, it's eased a lot of burden."

Parole board members said Waller's sexual preference was of no concern to them, as long as it was restricted to adults.
